

THE PONDICHERRY NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE:

The Story of a Spectacular Place Protected by Special People

Pondicherry is a name of mystery, and a great birding spot in Jefferson, NH. It is the fastest growing National Wildlife Refuge in the state. The view of the Presidential Range across Cherry Pond is one of the most dramatic scenes in the White Mountains. The ponds, marshes, and woodlands arguably harbor the greatest diversity of wildlife, especially birds, in New Hampshire.

In this entertaining program Bob Quinn will share the human story behind the refuge, focusing on the three key people responsible for the establishment of this premier wildlife area: Horace Wright, Tudor Richards, and David Govatski. The legacy of those three key people lives on in a spectacular place we all can visit and enjoy.
